Reading: Third Grade Readers Impress Teacher Already!

The students and I are learning about our classroom book library, how to think while reading, reasons to choose books, how to write about books, and how to be a successful independent reader. We will continue learning about these topics next week.

Writing: Goal Writing a Success!

Students had a chance to write their third grade goals for our "Field of Dreams." In addition, the students completed their first project in the computer lab, which required them to make their own baseball trading card with a program called ComicLife. Next week, the students will begin writing a paper all about themselves.

Just for Fun: Third Day of Third Grade

For "Friday Fun" this week, the students picked different activities to complete revolving around the number three. Some choices were picking out multiples of three, naming your favorites in groups of three, finding meanings of words such as trilogy, tripod, trifocal, and much more!

Next week . . .

Landon and Eric

will be our outstanding

Notes from the Teacher:

We had a wonderful first week of school as the children and I got to know each other and our new classroom. I am thrilled that they are each a part of our team. Next week, the students will begin to receive math homework and we will start our first unit on sampling and data. We will also be modeling a spelling unit in class next week, so don't expect students to have spelling homework until the following week. Please look and sign your child's assignment notebook each night. I look forward to seeing you at Open House so you can get a better understanding of our curriculum and classroom procedures. The nurse has requested that each child bring in an extra pair of clothes in a bag to keep in their lockers in case of an emergency. Please send that in as soon as possible. Thanks!

Hit a Homerun with our Word of the Week

Next week, we will be working with the word STRIVE (to try very hard). Try using it at home!
